

Guidelines for the Kansas Anthropological Association Support Fund

This fund was originally established by the Harold and Margie Reed family of Salina and included the Harold and Margie Reed Publication Fund and the Reed Family KATP Field School Support Fund. These funds were intended to help with Kansas Anthropological Association (KAA) publications, the annual Kansas Archeology Training Program (KATP), and other Kansas archeology needs.

The Reed Funds were relinquished to the KAA in the spring of 2022 and are overseen by the KAA Finance Committee, the KAA Treasurer, and the KAA Executive Committee. The Finance Committee will manage the funds, the Treasurer is in charge of all disbursements, and the Executive Committee will approve applications for use of the funds.

The Finance Committee has the authority to move the funds from the current management firm to another firm, if the need arises, and to determine what type of investment will be selected.

Various KAA committees will consider written proposals, which will then be submitted to the Executive Committee and the Finance Committee for review before being approved or rejected.

The Treasurer and Finance Committee will be in charge of setting schedules for payment of all funds.

Eligible expenditures may include publications, bulletins, pamphlets (graphic artists, editors, designers, etc.), guest speakers, instructors, teaching materials, field school projects, and anything else that may be deemed applicable.

In the event that the KAA should cease to function as an organization, the balance of the funds shall transfer to the Archeology Office of the Kansas State Historical Society.
